The tournament was held at Queen's Gambit, not Wendy's, and was played in one section. Thomas won it by finding mating attacks in positions where he was under heavy time pressure. Mark Kriseler astonished his many admirers by playing 1 e4 three times.

SCHOLASTIC CHESS

Scholastic chess has been booming in Colorado Springs, where 150 students recently played in tournaments sponsored by the Gifted and Talented Departments of School Districts 11 and 20. These tournaments were directed by Bob Gattis, Djoef Woessner, and Richard Buchanan. Top prize winners were as follows: Grades K-3: Ryan Egan, Doyle Grebenik, Gabriel Smith; Grades 4-5: Jake O'Connor, Adam Eaches, Joshua Ruff; Grades 6-7: David Risley, Mark Freidberg, Stuart Kennedy; Grades 8-9: Jason Dinkley, Ryan Thompson, Masud Kitson; Grades 10-12: Edy Randall, Jeff Cates, Justin Lee.

Several schools have established active clubs, and there are lots of enthusiastic chess players hungry for more competition.

CSCA NEWS

At our last board meeting the deadline dates on bids for a couple of tournaments were decided. The Colorado Open bid deadline is April 1. The Team Tournament bid deadline is March 15. If no bids are received for the Team then the deadline will shift to August 1. All other tournaments will be considered at the board meeting after the bid is received.

Liz Wood would like to remind the organizers that if she does not have the tour fee for a tournament when she sends in the TLA's for printing, the tournament will not be listed as a tour event.

PREZ NOTES

The Gerash Memorial was unique in one aspect. Almost an entire door to the playing site was covered with tour and clearinghouse information. On the door was updated tour standings and a list of future tournaments. Also on the door was the updated TOP 100 list.

The list that attracted the most attention was the tournament list with the tour events marked in yellow. The TOP 100 and tour point listing also received lots of attention. The feedback I received was all positive.

These lists will be going out to all the tournaments listed in CSCA publications. If you like the lists, next time you see Liz or Steve, let them know.

You the members voted in a good tour format. The CSCA board put in a good person to run it. Together we have revived the tour and together it will be a success.

ORGANIZERS; When I heard the people in the tournament talking about what events they were going to play in, their number one criteria was whether or not the event was a tour event. When deciding if your tournament will be tour event, ask yourself if you want as many players as possible.

Since the tour fee is based on the number of players that play in your tournament, you can't lose. So when you plan your next tournament, make it part of the COLORADO CHESS TOUR. While your at it, include in your CHESS LIFE announcement that it is a TOUR EVENT!

CASWELL SILVER, 1916-1988

Caswell Silver, a geologist, oil company executive, outdoorsman and longtime supporter of Colorado Chess, died at his Santa Fe home of a heart attack on October 18, 1988. Silver was 72, born June 25, 1916 in Connecticut.

Mr. Silver served as president, chairman and chief executive officer of the Sundance Oil Company, based in Quebec. During his years with Sundance, he helped find and develop a number of significant oil and gas fields in the Rocky Mountains of the United States and Canada. He also kept a home in Denver, where Sundance maintains its operations headquarters.

He served as advisor to the Geological Society of America and was the first chairman of the board of trustees of the Geological Society of America Foundation. He was an active member of many national and regional professional societies, giving personal support and working to further research in the earth sciences. In 1981, the University of New Mexico, his alma mater, recognized his contributions with an honorary doctorate of science degree (PhD). Mr. Silver was very interested and actively participated in the promotion of chess in Colorado. During the latter part of the 1960's and the early 1970's, Sundance Oil Company sponsored a Chess Team in the Denver Chess League where he participated with the team.

He was especially active in supporting the development of younger players through his philanthropic endeavors along with the support of the Denver Petroleum Club and the Petroleum Industries in sponsoring the Colorado Junior Chess Championships (1967 - 1974).

Mr. Silver was co-chairman with John A. Howell of the World Quarter Final Chess Championship when in 1971 the CSCA hosted the Quarter Final match for the World Chess Title between Bobby Fischer of New York and Bent Larsen of Denmark. The event, jointly sponsored by FIDE, USCF, CSCA, and the Denver Chess Club, was held at Colorado Women's College (then Temple Buell College) in Denver.

He is survived by his wife, Elizabeth; daughters Ann Pilleo and Sue Hirivandi; and brothers Alexander and Leon, and his sister Esther.

EXPERTS DON'T BLUNDER!
 (WE JUST GIVE ODDS.)

by Paul Cornelison

Since I became an Expert I have noticed that after I blunder, my opponents seem to stop playing chess. Instead, they move the pieces with little or no plan and expect the extra material to win for them. If you are offered an unexpected gift, there are some special ideas that you should consider. First, be very careful that the blunder really is a blunder and not a sacrifice or a trap. Having done so, take the material! Several times this summer my blunders have turned into strong moves because my opponent felt that it must be a sacrifice because "experts don't blunder." Calculate some variations and if it looks like a gift, take it. Once that freebie is in your hand, it's time to consider what to do with it. You can try to hold on to it, exchange down to a won endgame, or give it back for some other advantage.

The position to the right occurred at the Paris Open in June. It is White to move, but it is clearly only a matter of time. White is also in very bad time pressure and quickly played 40 Bc1 making time control by seconds. Black, still with several minutes on the clock, quickly played 40... Qxd4?!, thinking 40 Bc1 was only a time pressure blunder and expecting 41 Be3, Nxe3 42 fe, Qe5! and after a few checks White should resign. If only Black had taken a prudent amount of time to look at the resulting pin along the long diagonal! The game continued 41 Rxe6+!, Rxe6 (41... Kc5 42 Be3, Nxe3 43 Qxc7+ and mate next.) 42 Rxe6+, Kc5 43 Rc6+!, Kxc6 44 Qxd4 with an easy win. Moral: Calculate the variations, and then, and only then, take the material.

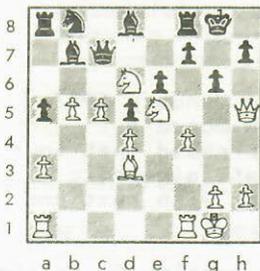

Cornelison-MacLellan

In the next game we see a true gift.

1988 Air Academy Open, Cornelison-Burden, SICILIAN: 1 e4, c5 2 Nf3, d6 3 d4 cd 4 Nxd4 Nf6 5 Be3? (Both players were in speed chess mode and White just transposed his moves.) Nxe4 6 Bc4, d5! 7 Bb3, g6!? 8 Nb5 (Cheap threats) Bg7 9 c3, Be6? (Black's plan seems to be "Hold the extra pawn," but his setup is all wrong. The d-pawn should be protected by the e-pawn. White, though up in tempos, is not well co-ordinated. Therefore Black should kick the troublesome knight with 9... a6 10 Na3 (10 Nd4, 0-0 followed by 11... e5 with a mobile center) e6, then ... 0-0 with a much better position plus a pawn.) 10 Bxd5 Bxd5 11 Qxd5, Nd6?? (Better is 11... Qxd5 12 Ne7+, Kf8 13 Nxd5, Nc6 when the game should be equal after ... e6 and ... Ke7) 12 Nxd6+, Qxd6 13 Qxb7, Qc6 14 Qxc6, Nxc6 (Black is now headed toward an endgame a pawn down.) 15 Nd2, 0-0 16 Nb3, Rfd8 17 Ke2, e5 18 Rhd1 e4 19 Rxd8, Rxd8 20 Rd1, Rxd1 21 Kxd1, f5 22 Nd2, Kf7 23 f3, ef 24 Nxf3, h6 25 Ke2, a6 26 Nd4, Nxd4? 27 Bxd4, Bxd4? 28 cd, Ke6 29 b4, g5 30 a4, Kd6 31 b5, ab 32 ab, h5 33 h4! (This makes things easier.) gh 34 Ke3, Kc7 35 d5, Kd7 36 Kf4, Kd6 37 b6, Kd7 38 Kxf5 and the game is over.

Some of you have seen this game in the October INFORMANT.

Colorado Open, Cornelison-Jenson (from position at left): Black has just played 22...g6 and White was all set to play 23 Qh6 and then Rf3-h3. But after thinking about that position for a while White reached out and played 23 Rf3?? and, for a while, neither player realized what had happened! 23...gh 24 Re1 (White's game is still playable because the queenside pawns hem in Black's pieces.) f6? (Black creates a weakness at e6 and weakens the kingside. He really seems to have no plan. If you are up a piece (or a queen!!) try to trade down to the endgame, especially when your position is cramped. Therefore 24...Nd7! was called for. If 25 Nxd7, Qxd7 26 c6, Qxd6 27 cb, Rb8 Black is still up a queen and his game is much freer; or 25 Nxb7, Nxe5 26 Rxe5, Qxb7 and after White manages to attack h7, f7-f5 should take care of it. Instead, Black takes a materialistic view and suffers for it.) 25 Rg3+, Kh8 26 Nf3, Qd7 (Much better is 26...Nd7 with the idea 27...Nxc5! After 26...Qd7 the black knight has no squares.) 27 f5, Bc7? (The passed pawn is much better than Black's pin.) 28 fe, Qe7 29 Nh4, Bxd6 30 cd, Qxd6 (Black has finally broken up White's queenside pawns, but at what a price! Black may already be lost, i.e., 31 e7, Qxg3 32 ef+ , Qg8 33 Qxf6+, Qg7 34 Re8 mate.) 31 e7, Re8 32 Nf5, Qc7 (Giving up the queen at this late date still does no good: 32...Qxg3 33 hg, Bc8 34 Nd6! Bd7 35 Bf5 is painful, or 33...Nd7 34 b6!, Bc6 35 Rcl, Ba4 36 b7 and the pawns more than make up for a rook.) 33 Nh6, Nc6? (Black should have made this move long ago.) 34 Nf7 mate. If you are up as much as in this game, exchange it off as soon as practical and give some of it back if you need to. It is up to you to cut the position down to an endgame.

The last position is from the last round of the Jackson Hole Open in Wyoming. The winner will take clear second, so the pressure is really on!

Cornelison-Colin (from position at right): 21 e5?! , de 22 Rhe1?? (For some reason I thought that the rook could not take the bishop because of Qxf4.) Rxf4 23 g5, Rxc3? (It must be Christmas! All Black has to do is 23...Nxb5 24 Qxd7, Qxd7 25 Rxd7 and White is dead lost. Even a rook on the seventh is not enough. Black has a very strong bishop and active rooks, and White's pawns could not be weaker! After the game my opponent said that my "bishop sac was brilliant." He thought he was worse after my 23rd move, and that I would take the c3 rook with my queen, thus saving the light-squared bishop. When I showed him the position after 23...Nxb5 he stated that he does not like to play endgames, and that he didn't consider it. Black tried to hold on to material at all cost, and it cost him the game. Giving up one type of advantage for another is just good chess. In order to win back the bishop White had compromised his pawn structure and dropped a pawn to boot. Black should have settled for that, won one or two of the weak pawns, and had fun spending the second prize money. So how do you win when you are up the exchange?) 24 bc, Nd5 26 Qxd5, Qxd5 26 Rxd5, Be8! (The only move, e.g., 26 Bc6 27 Rd8+, Bf8 28 Red1 threatening to double rooks on the eighth) 27 Rd8, Kf8 28 h6! Bh8 29 Nc5, e6 30 Ra8, Rcl 31 Rd1 (Black can have the knight; White is going for mate.) Ke7 32 Rxa7+, Kf8 33 Rd8, Rxc5 (What else is there?) 34 Raa8, f6 35 Rxe8+, Kf7 36 Rxh8, fg. and White mates in two.

POINTS CALCULATIONS FOR THE COLORADO CHESS TOUR

by Garth Courtois Jr.

The equations for the chess tour were published in the January 1987 informant. They are worth repeating because of the CSCA Board's increased attention to the Tour. Interest has been expressed that tour points be described in 'english descriptive' rather than 'algebraic', therefore this presentation will express the mathematics with text and descriptions.

The Tour encourages chess participation and provides continuity to the year's series of otherwise unrelated tournaments. Recognition goes to those players who perform well, not in just one tournament, but in multiple tournaments. Almost any system with cumulative scores does this, and the current method does even more.

The charm of the tour points system is that it encourages good performance, play in higher rated sections, and play in larger tournaments. It is a combination of these elements, accumulated over a number of tournaments, which reaps the highest tour scores.

The good performance feature is of course easiest to demonstrate. If a player scores 4 out of 5 in a tournament, and if that section's perfect score value is 65 point, the player is awarded four-fifths of 65, which is 52 tour points. How the section itself, in our example, is worth 65 points is the feature which encourages higher rated sections and large tournaments. Twenty of those 65 come from the number of players in lower sections, and 45 from the strength of the section itself. In our example there was a lower section in the tournament with 20 players and each player in a lower section contributes one point to each higher section's perfect-score value. The 45 points came from the players within its own section, where there is one point for each 1000 rating points. In our example, a section with 25 players with an average rating of 1800 gives  $1.800 \times 25 = 45$ . There is another, mathematically equivalent way to calculate the section points and that is to take the total rating points and divide by 1000. Our section has 45000 rating points which computes a perfect-score value of 45.000. If there are higher sections in this same tournament, they do not add to this section's tour points nor does it subtract.

There is a possible misconception to address. Even if there are more people in the section, those points are not spread thinner! The 1.8 points that an 1800 player adds to the section contributes to every tour point winner in the section.

There are a few more features to the Tour point calculation. Only those who score 33% or more get points for that event. T.D.s get credit for 33% score in their section. There is a special provision for a section with an average rating below 1000.

In mathematical summary, the section's perfect-score value is the total of the number of players in lower sections plus 1/1000th for each rating point in the section. The number of tour points is the perfect-score value multiplied by the fraction of games won, provided the fraction is 0.33 or more.

In chess promotion summary, repeat participation is encouraged by accumulation of tour points, award of tour points for more wins and for play in higher sections. CSCA posts the ongoing results, there is recognition given, and the Colorado Tour does its part to promote chess.

CSCA MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

by CSCA President Mark Kriseler

On January 1, 1989, the CSCA will begin a membership drive to increase the number of chess players in the state. The drive will end the weekend before the Colorado Open.

All chess clubs will be eligible and all clubs can win. This drive will not only benefit CSCA, but also the clubs and tournaments. The most important point of the Drive is that your success does not depend on whether you can sign up more members than another club, but on the number of new members that your club signs up.

The rules for the CSCA MEMBERSHIP DRIVE are simple:

1) The base number for qualifying for a prize is 12. Any new regular CSCA member (This includes people whose membership expired before 1/88.) counts as one point. New Senior members count  $\frac{1}{2}$  point.

2) The CSCA membership form will be the official record for the drive. On the bottom of each form is a space for the name of the organization that signed up the new member. Any new members not signed up on a form will not count for your total. If you do not have the form, contact Mark Kriseler or Liz Wood to get some.

3) Any club getting the 12 points qualifies for a prize. One prize will be awarded for each 12 points. The prizes available are

1) A simul from Life Master Dave Jellison. CSCA will pay for the simul by Dr. J. The club will be responsible for any travel expenses. The club will also be able to use the simul to promote the club or increase its treasury.

2) CSCA will pay for $40.00 worth of chess equipment purchased from USCF. The club indicates what it would like, and we will order it for them. CSCA will pay for shipping.

3) CSCA will send a $40.00 check to the qualifying club.

4) A club that signs up 24 or 36 new members will be eligible for 2 or 3 prizes. You can get a simul, equipment, and cash, or 3 simuls from Dave Jellison or any other combination of prizes. The choice is yours.

Not only are we going to give you prizes for signing up new members, we are going to help you do it! We have asked USCF to allow us to sell the 6-month introductory USCF membership as part of our drive. As soon as we get the forms, we will get them out to you.

We will be sending out the next President's Newsletter to old CSCA members and to USCF members who are not in CSCA. The deadline for that newsletter is January 15. If your club contacts Mark Kriseler before that time, he will include your club name and a contact number. If you have any questions just give Mark a call at 894-0221

Don't let your club be left behind while the others are growing. 1989 is the year of growth! BE PART OF IT!!

BOULDER BOOK AUCTION

by Steve Jackson

With a total of twenty-two players competing in two sections, the First Annual Boulder Book Auction Chess Tournament set a new attendance record for major weekend events being held at the newly opened Enpassant Chess Cafe in Boulder. The competition was unusually intense--no less than seven players gained a share of first place in one or the other of the two sections. Co-winners in the Championship Section were Dave Jellison, Eric Beckman, Michael Shedd, and Ron Nichols. In the Amateur Section Guy Hadley, an up-and-coming high school player from Wyoming, finished in a tie for first place with Al Gardner and Jim Vaughn. In addition to the chess competition, players and bystanders alike were afforded an excellent opportunity to buy or sell used chess books. Over $200 was raised, and all of the proceeds were returned to the previous owners.

White's shattered pawn structure is partially compensated for by his better K and by virtue of this being a R ending. In general, the weaker side should not trade R's, but should seek active play, with both rooks marauding and gobbling pawns until all pawns are off or Black has one pawn left in a book-draw position. Here White makes an exception, since Black's K is still too far away to win a K ending.) 30 Re2!,Rc1 31 Ke4,Kf7 32 Kd5,Kf6* 33 g4 (Weakening, but Black is threatening to invade the kingside. 33 Re6+,Kf5 with 34 Rc6?,Rd1! 35 Kxc5,Rxd3 36 b4,Rxg3 37 Kxb5,Kxf4 is a text win for Black, while 34 Rd6!,c4! 35 dc,Rxc4! intending ...Rb4xb2 accords White only minimal drawing chances. TURKEY CHESSE
( OR HOW NOT TO ORGANIZE A CHESSE TOURNAMENT )

by Mark Kriseler

If you want to hold a chess tournament, here are some of the rules for a successful tournament.

1. Offer a substantial prize fund. This requires large entry fees.
2. Hold it on an open weekend.
3. Get lots of advance advertising in CHESSE LIFE and the INFORMANT.
4. Use an established tournament format that all the players are familiar with.

THEN THERE'S THE TURKEY TROTS!!

1. The entry fee was $3.00. First place was $14.00.
2. The TURKEY TROTS was held on a weekday from 9:30 to 5:00.
3. The TURKEY TROTS was organized less than 24 hours before registration was to begin.
4. The TURKEY TROTS used a format that only the wacko T.D. could figure out. The King of the Hill ladder.

With his results in this tournament, Thomas Storaas probably has achieved his MASTER rating. He is a foreign exchange student from Sweden and is living in Lakewood.

Many thanks to Mark and Liz Wood who allowed their office to be the site. The only site problem was when some players would forget to put the rest room key back on the hook. An announcement had to be made before each round for the players to go through their pockets to find the key. It usually came up missing after a few minutes into the round. It was a large problem since most chess players consume large quantities of caffeine while they are playing.

The goal was to have a fun tournament. The goal was met!

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

TO CLEAR THE AIR

In the July issue of the Colorado Informant, I made the statement that I was very unhappy with the President and Secretary of the C.S.C.A. and encouraged you to come to the elections in September to vote. Many of you did indeed come to vote and were quite surprised as to my failure to speak up at that time. The reason was simply that my wife Liz was running for office and I felt that, in the best interests of the election, it would be harmful to the election process to air my complaints. Since the incumbent President failed to get reelected, I feel further comments are now unnecessary.

As for my complaints with Steve Anderson as secretary/treasurer, I would like to state my sincere apologies to him. My initial complaints came from the fact that for the first few months it was very difficult in getting in touch with him. When I won the Colorado Tour in September 1987, I was very anxious to receive my check. I started calling about this in late November, only to learn that the signature cards had not yet been sent through. Until the signature cards were cleared up, he could not write the checks for the Tour winners. All of this was due to the fact that Steve was setting up his new business. I know that there is never enough time to see your family, let alone take care of non-paying volunteer jobs when you are starting a new business.

I now feel that Steve did not foresee the time crunch he would be faced with. Steve did indeed go out of his way to pay me for my tour winnings from cash he had collected from dues around Christmas time.

Since January, when Steve got the checkbook problems solved, he has done a tremendous job. Those top 100 lists you see posted at the tournaments come from greatly improved data base files he has worked on. C.S.C.A. membership rosters are much more current and easier to read than in the past. He has brought forth many new and exciting ideas for Colorado chess. Again, my apologies go out to you, Steve, and may you keep up the great job you have been doing!

The Denver Industrial League will be starting up in January. Further information can be obtained from Mark Wood, at (303) 922-7014.
