From the Editor

The rumor mill has been churning of late as to who will run and who will not. I speak of course about the upcoming CSCA Board elections on September 1st. The first person to throw their hat in the Presidential ring is Randy Reynolds. Take a look at his candidacy on page 3. For those who didn't have a chance to submit before this issue's deadline you can always go to the CSCA Facebook page and declare and/or comment on those who are running. The web address is <http://tinyurl.com/kbwq76a>.

This issue comes stocked full of a number of recent tournaments. Of course, from the cover, the Bobby Fischer Memorial where GM Tejas Bakre made a return visit from his native India. The Colorado Closed Championships are in here, as well as a report on the continuing friendly rivalry between Colorado and New Mexico. Someone once mentioned that more states should be holding these type of tournaments and I agree. What better way to foster chess in those respective states. Understandable that more state associations don't because of monetary expenditures, but still, a little friendly competition can always bring out the best in chess players.

So remember, the CSCA elections will be here in a few months, get involved and support those candidates who closely reflect your views on how our state association should be run.

May Caissa be with you.

Presidential Pitch

Greetings CSCA general membership,

My name is Randy Reynolds, and I seek to become the next CSCA President at the CSCA board elections on September 1st.

As a bit of my background, I have been an active part of the Colorado chess community since 2000, serving not only as a fellow player but also as the Colorado Chess Informant editor for a few years and CSCA Secretary for 7 years, where I implemented an online membership directory and consolidated the CSCA membership list and Colorado Tour point calculations into one database. I would like to continue my service by becoming your president for the 2013-14 year and ask for your vote to do so.

Allow me to share with you my vision for Colorado chess over the next year. For too long, CSCA membership has become more of a burden than a blessing, requiring its membership of people who play in the Colorado tour events without providing clear value for the member. We used to have a printed quarterly magazine that added some value to the membership, but even that has gone digital and is now available to every person, regardless of membership status. I would like to change this perception of CSCA membership and make it more desirable, rather than just some required fee to play in certain Colorado tournaments.

To increase the CSCA membership value, I propose a strategy that consists of three components:

1. CSCA website overhaul.
2. Spending CSCA funds on a strict budget for projects that benefit the majority.
3. A bottoms-up approach to governing CSCA.

CSCA Website Overhaul

First, I propose a complete redesign of the CSCA website. The original website has been in place since at least 2000 when I moved to Colorado, and technology has rapidly improved since then. Today's modern website ought to include a centralized forum (similar to the one already existing on Facebook) where CSCA members can share ideas and concerns. It should also include an up-to-date centralized, searchable database of games with games viewer so members have an opportunity to see games played by fellow Colorado players. We should also include an online payment option for CSCA from the website so players can renew their CSCA membership without mailing a check to the Treasurer or attending a Colorado Tour event. Along with a restructuring of the various links to get to important information easier, these ideas will make our online presence a more fulfilling experience to both members and non-members alike.

Spending CSCA Funds for Projects that Benefit the Majority

My approach to spending CSCA funds is intended to benefit the majority of our active chess players. To increase attendance at our tournaments and provide a more rewarding playing experience to all participants, I would recommend that all Colorado tournaments (and at least all sponsored by CSCA) would allow free entry fee to any new member that pays for a full year of USCF and CSCA dues. This entry fee would be reimbursed by CSCA, with the intended purpose that a person who signs up for a full year of CSCA and USCF will likely attend other tournaments as well throughout the year. By alleviating the initial financial impact, this should increase our membership and drive up attendance at tournaments.

In addition, I recognize Denver as a desirable and centralized place to play, though it often is prohibitively expensive for an organizer to use a Denver venue and break even financially. I would like to subsidize a portion of the venue costs for Denver events to allow a majority of chess players to play at a centralized location without driving too far from home. This should help Denver weekend chess to recover and ought to boost the number of tournaments held as well. Much thanks to Chris Peterson for initiating this idea.

I believe in importing strong players to play in our state, but not by simply paying a Grandmaster to come to our tournaments (where they'll likely win the first place prize money as well). This again is aligned with my philosophy that CSCA funds should benefit the 99%, not the 1% who is from out-of-state and doesn't even pay CSCA dues. Thus, I think our funds can be better used in national bids to keep venue costs low, and that's what I intend to seek. It's been a long time since we had a national event in our state, and winning a national event bid will bring the strong talent to our state without draining our reserves.

A Bottoms-up Approach to Governing CSCA

Finally, I value the ideas from our lay membership and believe good governing involves taking input from our members on what they would like their organization to become. As President, I would not seek power over individual clubs to charge fees and dues for their tournament and club promotion. I believe our clubs are already self-managing themselves very well and need no external coercion from CSCA. I believe in equal treatment for all players and would not support any proposal that aims to "bend the rules" for a stronger player. This is another reason I am in favor of inviting strong players to the state through national events, rather than paying one player a lot of money to grace us with his presence. A good board must actively make decisions, of course, but any decisions that would affect the established rules (such as changing the Colorado Tour format or Closed participants' requirements) would not take effect until the next year, thus allowing a membership meeting where the membership can openly discuss their concerns to such proposals. This approach allows for the members to take an active role in the organization and emphasizes the importance of our annual CSCA meetings.

In closing, I want Colorado chess to grow. I want CSCA membership to be a source of pride rather than drudgery. I want us to get back to having multiple delegates we can send to the USCF delegates meeting every August. And with your help and vote, we can accomplish this together.

Randy S. Reynolds

Bobby Fischer Memorial Chess Tournament

by Organizer, Joe Fromme

This year was very exciting and all went smoothly especially with players having a fun time. There was some later April up and down drama with our illustrious Grandmaster from India, Tejas Bakre in dealing with airline standby stuff and flying out here took only 40 hours but he managed well and we were thrilled the Grandmaster could once again attend the tournament.

Since we received more entries than usual an upgrade to the Ballroom was necessary. Al, who is the owner of the Inn at Palmer Divide, notified the Kiwanis group to be out by 9:30am and then proceeded with his crew to impress. I have worked years as a union stagehand all across Colorado, but Al and his civilian workers whipped out tables and chairs, not only safely, but faster than Congress can vote themselves a pay raise.

Fred Spell took entries up to the last moments, even though he had to move his laptop and equipment, which only added to the chaos, still managed to get the clocks ticking, only ten minutes after the official start time. Good job Fred, you're the best! We ended up with a record 57 players! One from Cincinnati, Ohio, two from Albuquerque, New Mexico and of course, one from Ahmadabad, India. A perfect 4.0 score was earned by Grandmaster Tejas Bakre. Rebecca Herman in the under 1400, also had a perfect 4.0 score.

Apparently, my operating the demonstration board for the Grandmaster's games was not needed because it was simply too exciting for the many players to stand next to him enjoying his genius. Those of us who took lectures and lessons can attest to the Grandmaster's exciting instruction and brilliant insight into the game we all love to play.

The "special moment" of the tournament was the 4th round game between James Kulbacki and DuWayne Langseth. DuWayne could have forced a draw but chose to fight on forever to the last moment in search of victory. I watched till the bitter end. DuWayne stood up like a man and delivered! Therefore, "the friends of Bobby Fischer" proudly award DuWayne Langseth the "Fighting Spirit Award" which includes $50.00.

Finally, my thanks to the players who stayed at the Inn at Palmer Divide. I, myself, stayed there and can attest the accommodations and amenities are very pleasant, and the service great. Al, and his staff do a fantastic job, and we hope to see them again in May of 2014.

Colorado Class Championships

by Brad Lundstrom

The Northern Colorado Chess Festival kicked off Friday, March 22nd with a simultaneous exhibition with IM Keaton Kiewra and a new event, The Colorado State 5 Minute - Blitz Championship. The main event of course was the Colorado Class Championship which was held March 23-24 at the University of Northern Colorado in Greeley. The UNC Chess Club was instrumental in our securing a spacious beautiful site. UNC Club President, Lana Yost and other UNC students played in their first rated event and the Greeley Tribune provided front page coverage of our event. As always, Chief Tournament Director Randy Reynolds ran a great event and Zach Bekkedahl found us some outstanding trophies that all our class winners and 5 minute champion (IM Keaton scored a perfect 10-0 blitz result) received along with some nice cash prizes. A nice player turnout would have been even better if not for a blizzard the morning of the tournament. For the brave souls that made the trip, a great event took place...

Congratulations to our 2013 Colorado Class State Champions:

Master/Expert -- LM Brian Wall
 Class A -- DuWayne Langseth
 Class B -- Paul Baxter
 Class C -- Matt Lashley, Sr.
 Class D -- Isaac Smith
 Class E -- Xiang Yu Huang

Pierre Julien - Paul Covington

And now the game of the tournament, annotated by Life Master Brian Wall.

Round 3

G/90; +30"

(LM Brian Wall's favorite time control.)

IM Keaton Kiewra (2451)

(9-time Nebraska State Chess Champion)

LM Brian Wall (2254)

(6-time Colorado State Chess Champion)

1.d4 I had been stressing about playing Keaton for months. I played over 60 of his games in the database and they seemed like complicated Grandmaster games to me. Since Keaton is 25 years old, has two GM norms, plays like a GM and has visited 20 countries trying to get his final norm I consider it just a matter of time. I was corrected about 30 times when I said GM Keaton Kiewra but that's how I see him.

I can play something solid I don't know or something silly I do know. I decided to stick with the devil I knew after 7 minutes thought. I cannot learn the Nimzo-Indian, Queen's Indian and Bogo-Indian in 10 minutes.

In order not to play fearfully I woke up and said, "It's about time I beat a Grandmaster in a slow game." I beat 2500 IM Foigel 3 times in Massachusetts, I beat IM John Donaldson in the Governor's Cup where I beat Keaton, I drew GMs Arthur Bisguier, Anatoly Lein, Yuri Shulman and Sharavdorj Dashzeveg, I drew Hikaru Nakamura when he was a 13 year old IM. Of course I beat GMs and IMs all day on ICC.

The thing that most worried me was that Keaton's database games were long, complex games I didn't understand at all, Keaton plays the Dragon and King's Indian for Black and plays Bg5, f4 against the Najdorf as White.

Robert Ramirez was winning the middle game and drawing the rook ending against the IM in Round 2 so I asked Robert for advice.

"Keaton doesn't miss much."

- Robert Ramirez

I received a lot of attention after the game, not losing to the IM and making him lose 2 ratings points makes me feel like a local hero.

Keaton had trouble showing up on time, his car got stuck in the snow on Saturday and he was 20 minutes late for my game. Somehow I decided to play fast and maintain a time advantage. It was an amusing sight, instead of playing slowly triple checking every move against someone 300 points higher, I was whipping out aggressive moves like a blitz game.

1...Nc6 After 7 minutes hesitation, 1...a6!! was very tempting but it might transpose to a Taimanov type Sicilian which Keaton has just beat Robert Ramirez with. For the same reason I rejected the King's Indian.

I told Keaton to check out this video to see what I had in mind.

2.c4 e5 2...Nf6 is the Two Knight's Tango but the game becomes something similar.

3.d5! Nce7! 4.Nc3! Ng6 5.g3 So my knight has nowhere to go but he does support ... h5-h4 and ... f5-f4.

5...Nf6 6.Bg2 Bc5! This setup has been played in thousands of blitz games by the Three Musketeers, Robert Ramirez, Chris Peterson and myself.

7.Nf3! a5 At some point Black usually plays ...a6 or ...a5 to preserve his KB. Rybka likes 7...O-O!! or ...h6!! best.

8.O-O d6 9.Bg5! h6!! (Theoretical Novelty by LM Brian Wall.) 9...Ba7 Played before - Goran Mikanovic 2273 vs. Ray Phillips, 2001 Montreal, Canadian Closed Championship.

10.Bxf6! gxf6! 11.Rc1! h5!! 12.Nd2 h4!! So not castling has turned into a blessing, perhaps I can open the h-file and frighten Keaton with another Fishing Pole attack.

13.Nde4! hxg3 14.hxg3! b6!! The point is Keaton has spent a lot of energy trying to break through on c5. The threat of ...f5-f4 attack leaves Keaton with no time to pawn trap my bishop with e3-a3-b4.

15.Nxc5! bxc5! 16.e3 I admired this move, Keaton wants to kill my attack with f4, Kf2, Rh1. A lesser man might have been checkmated.

16...f5!! 17.f4!! I am better after any other move.

Robert Ramirez - Zach Bekkedahl

17...f6 Rybka likes 17...Bd7!, 18...Qf6!, 19...O-O-O!

18.Kf2!! Bd7 19.Rh1!! Kf7 20.Qc2! Rb8!!

*Time left - Keaton 49 minutes,
Brian 69 minutes.*

Nothing much has happened, I still have my extra 20 minutes, my attack is stymied so I offered a draw. I forgot that 2500's consider 2200's sub-human monstrosities that can barely hold up a pawn in their deformed paws.

21.Rxh8 Qxh8! 22.Rh1! Qg7! 23.Bf3! Rb4? Not much has happened yet but my last move was careless. 23...Nb5!! is awkward for me because my bishop is guarding f5.

24.Ne2 Qg8? Another careless move. I am creating difficulties from nothing.

25.Bh5!! Ke7? 25...Kf8!! or ...e4!! are not so bad but I had been avoiding ...e4 for quite a while now. I thought Nc3 and g4 would eventually punish any ...e4.

26.g4!! I felt like I had been judo-flipped, earlier I had been throwing pawns at Keaton's kingside and now the same thing is happening to me. I ascribed it to GM Magic.

26...exf4! 27.exf4! Kd8! 28.gxf5! Ne7! 29.Bg6!! 29.Ng3?? is the wrong way to guard f5, I can draw after 29.Ng3? Nxf5

30.Nxf5 Bxf5 31 Qxf5? Rxb2+ 32.Be2 Rxe2+ 33.Kxe2 Qg2+ 34.Ke3=

29...Kc8 30.a3 Rb6! 31.Rh7!! Nxd5!?

After examining the miserable 31...Nxc6 32.fxg6 f5 33.Rxd7 Kxd7 34.Qxf5+ Kd8 35 Qg5+ Kc8 36.f5 for 10 minutes.

32.cxd5 We missed 32.Qe4!! Game Over.

32...Qxd5! With the idea of ...Kb7, ...Bc6 with psuedo-play.

33.Bf7!! I had foreseen that this forced an endgame, my queen has nowhere to go. I recommended the middlegame after 33.Qc3!!! or 33.Ke1! after the game

33...Qxf5!

38 minutes left for each player.

34.Qxf5! Even here the middlegame after 34.Rh8+!! Kb7 35.Qd2! is stronger.

34...Bxf5 35.Rh6 Rxb2! Three connected passed pawns for a piece, one of my specialties.

36.Rxf6 Three pieces is a mate, preserving the knight with 36 Ke3!! is stronger.

36...Bd3!! I had saved thousands of these endings in blitz, the idea is to keep whittling down pawns and pieces until he has nothing left to mate or queen with.

37.Bh5!! c4 It was hard to hear, all my pieces were speaking at once. Rybka sorts it out like this:

37...Ra2 go after the a-pawn.
37...d5 advance your pawn wave.
37...c4 cause trouble with your passed pawn immediately.
37...Kd7 stop his f-pawn.

38.Ke3!! Bxe2 39.Bxe2! c3! 40.Bg4+ Kd8 41.Kd3?? Rg2!! I walked up to Robert Ramirez and TD Randy Reynolds overheard me say, "Check out board one!"

My best friend talking about our Skinner Junior High School days right after the 2013 Colorado Class Championship:

"I hated the way you played chess, I had such a hard time winning games and you were winning so lazily, you would barely pay attention unless you were losing."

- Steve Murray

"I was only 2200 when I got to UTD Dallas. I used to lose inferior rook endings all the time but I eventually learned enough tricks to hold them."

- IM Keaton Kiewra

I think our contrasting attitudes is why I didn't win this ending. While Keaton settled in for 14 minutes to find a way out of his difficulties, I strutted around like a peacock waiting for him to resign. It looks like I will be up two pawns soon, maybe even two connected passed pawns.

In my mind my job was already done, the IM has to grovel for a draw now.

All the tactics suddenly work in my favor:

42.Bd1 Rd2+
42.Be2 c2
42.Kxc3 Rxg4
42.Be6 c2
42.Bf3 c2!! or ...Rg3!
42.Bh3 c2!! or ...Rg3!

42.Rg6 c2!! 43.Rg8+! Ke7!

23 minutes each.

44.Rg7+ Kf6!! I can force a draw with 44...Kd8 but it is Keaton's turn to suffer.

45.Rxc7! Rxg4! The bishop pawns will be traded eventually and then the result rests on whether I can win Keaton's rook pawn. The result is unclear with possibly flip-flopping evaluations in time pressure. Keaton knew he was absolutely lost if he went two pawns down, I wasn't as sure. It reminded me a bit of my marathon Okla-

54.Rh3 Rc5 Doesn't do much but locking out Keaton's king felt cool.

55.Rh7 Rg5! 56.Rh4 Kd7! Crawling around to the action side.

57.a4 Kc6! 58.Kc4! Rg1 Both the Grandmaster and the computer prefer 58...d5+!!

16 minutes left each.

59.Rh5 Rg4+! Both the Grandmaster and the computer prefer 59...d5+!! but I still don't see the win after 59...d5+ 60.Kc3 Rg3+ 61.Kc2 Ra3 62.Rh4 Kc5 63.Kb2 Rg3 64.Kc2 d4 65.Rh5+ Kb4 66.Rd5 d3+ 67.Kd2 Kxa4 68.Kc3 d2+ 69.Kxd2 Kb4 70. Kc1

60.Kb3! d5!

15 minutes each, remaining.

61.Rh8! Rg3+! 62.Kb2! Kc5 63.Rb8!!= Another GM judo-trick, while I was trying to get my rook to b4 Keaton somehow got his rook to b5. I got nuttin' honey.

63...Kc4! 64.Rb5! Rg2+! 65.Kc1 d4 66.Rxa5! Kd3 67.Rh5 Kc3

12 minutes each.

68.Rc5+! Only Move.

68...Kd3 69.Rh5! Rg1+ 70.Kb2! Looks like a short-side, long-side draw without the a-pawn anyway.

70...Re1 71.a5! Re2+! At this point I decided to stop fooling around and just clinch the draw.

13 minutes each.

72.Kb3! Re1 73.Rh3+! Keaton decided to try two last tricks before conceding the draw.

73...Ke4! 74.Rh4+! Kd5! 75.Rh8! Ra1! 75...Ke-any?? loses my rook.

76.Kb2! Ra4! 76...Rxa5?? 77.Rh5+ wins my rook.

77.Kb3! Ra1! 78.Kb2!

1/2-1/2 Agreed drawn.

Maybe rook endgame specialist DuWayne Langseth can find a win for me but I couldn't.

Some sloppy play around Moves 23-25 almost cost me the game.

1.e4 e5 2.Nf3 Nc6 3.d4 exd4 4.Nxd4 Nf6
5.Nxc6 bxc6 6.Bd3 (A more rare line of the Scotch.) 6...d5 7.e5 (7.exd5 cxd5
 8.0-0 should be considered.) 7...Ng4
8.0-0 Bc5 (Keeping pressure on the e-pawn by pinning the f-pawn and attacking it a second time.) 9.Bf4 (Understandably defending the e-pawn, guarding h2 and possibly f2 by a later Bg3. Unfortunately this gives black the initiative.) 9...g5!
10.Bg3 h5 11.h3 (11.Be2 was an alternative.) 11...h4 12.Bh2 Nxh2 13.Kxh2 g4 (Maybe piling up on the e-pawn with 13...Qe7 and Bd4 was better because it cannot be adequately defended e.g.
 13...Qe7 14.Qe2 Bd4 and the e-pawn would fall. I wanted to break open the position as much as possible though.) 14.gxh4 Qg5 (Again going after the e-pawn was a bit better.) 15.Kh3 (White could have gone into a relatively even endgame with 15.f4 Qxg4 16.Qxg4 Bxg4.

The text move brings the king to a vulnerable square and self-pins the g-pawn.)

15...Rg8 16.Be2 Qxe5 (The threat of Bxf2 is very hard to meet. 17.Qd3 or 17.Qe1 is met by Qf4 and proves very bothersome because White is tied down to dark square weaknesses. 17.Qd3 was probably the best try though.) 17.Bf3 (17.f4 was losing after Qe3+, so it is assumed this move (Bf3) was meant to block this line.) 17...Bxf2 18.Qe2 (Forced to prevent mate on g3.) 18...Be3 (Threatening mate again.) 19.Qe1 (Only defense.) 19...f5 20.g5 (Only way to try and avoid heavy material loss to fxg4+.) 20...Rxg5 (20...f4+ is premature because
 White escapes easily with Kh2.
21.Qxh4? (Although Black no longer has Rh8 as in earlier lines it is still very dangerous. Passive moves like Nc3 or Nd2 are going to lose the bishop on f3 if not worse. If White retreats with 21.Bd1 or Be2 21...f4+ will mate in a few moves,
 e.g. 22.Kh2 f3+ 23. Kh1 fxg2#.)
21...Rg3! 22.Qxg3 f4+ (Now mate is forced. 23.Bg4 Qh5+ 24.Qh4 Bxg4+ 25.Kh2 Qxh4#. All other lines are getting mated in a few moves also.) 23.Qg4

Fort Collins Scholastic Chess Tournament

by Brad Lundstrom

March Madness

The Fort Collins Chessmates last tournament of school year series went off with a bang! An awesome turn-out of 163 scholastic participants competed in seven sections. We continue to work towards making chess more mainstream and visible to the general public and the tournament received newspaper coverage from the Fort Collins Coloradoan. There were many trophies and prizes awarded to student individuals, school teams and to year-long series winners. Zach Bekkedahl, Randy Reynolds, Bob Grant and Mark Luce served as organizers and TD's while receiving outstanding support from the Poudre School District. While most of the players were from Fort Collins, a team from Cheyenne and students from Loveland, Denver and many other areas made the event. Scholastic chess is booming in Colorado and it is exciting to see so many bright young students that have a passion for chess!

Our individual winners were: Natalie Lin K-1, Alexander Marsh 2nd grade, Rishabh Cowlagi 3rd grade, David

Gao 4th grade, Timothy Stephens 5th grade, Oliver Wallace Middle School, and Akshat Jain in the rated section.

Congrats to all our Kings Gambit champions!

Answers:

1. On the previous move Black played 32...Rh7?? hoping for 33.Rxh7 Kxf6 with an even trade, but missed 33.Re6+!! If 33...fxe6 34.Rxh7+ skewering the Black king and Black knight on b7 winning a piece. If the Black king moves to get out of check, then simply 34.Rxh7 and the g7 pawn is still pinned to the knight. Paul featured this position in his excellent Colorado Springs Chess Newsletter at <http://cschess.webs.com>
2. On the previous move Black played 10...Be6 to develop his bishop, stop the threat of Qxf7# and attack White's queen. The move 11.Bxc6+ buys time for White, and wins a piece for White, removing the defender of the bishop on b4, 11...bxc6 12.Qxb4. Remember, you can't stop the Grob, you can only hope to contain it!
3. 34.Nb5 attacks the Black rook on d4 and threatens the mate, Rf8#. Black cannot meet both threats. The game continued 34...Rc4 35.Rf8#
4. On the previous move Black played 14...b6?? weakening his knight. Herman's Munster of a knight jumps in with 15.Ne5 attacking the knight on c6 and queen on d7. The knight on c6 is pinned to the queen, so cannot capture. White wins a piece.
5. 17...Nxc3 removing the defender of the knight on e5 and Shirley's Temple, becomes a Temple of Doom.
6. Alex was a free man after Anthea missed a mate in one with 37...Qe1# and played 37...Qe7?? instead. The game ended in a draw.
7. Gunnar's bishop spans the board with 40.Bg8+!! Discovered attack on the queen on a3. 41...Rxb8 42.Qxa3
8. Ryan found the brilliant 39.Rg5+!! Clearing the e5 square for the queen to enter the attack, and creating a mating net around Brady's bunch. If 39...Nxc5 40.Qg7# otherwise there is mate in five - for example, 39...Kf7 40.Qg7+ Kxe8 41.Re5+ Qe6 42.Rxe6+ Kd8 43.Qe7+ Kc8 44.Rxc6#
9. Jason was loving his position after 16.Bf1 trapping the Black queen.

Colorado Closed & Senior Championships

by Richard "Buck" Buchanan

From April 19 – 21 the CSCA held the Colorado Closed Championships and the Colorado Senior Championship tournaments in Manitou Springs. As in recent years, the Closed had four six-player sections of invited players. The Senior was open to players aged 50 or older, and it drew 29 participants.

Like last year, LM Brian Wall chose to play in both events simultaneously, which meant that in four rounds he played two games at a time. This did not stop him from becoming Colorado Closed Champion despite a last round loss to Jackson Chen. In the Senior, he also lost a game to Anthony Telinbacco, and the tie-break points from this victory helped Anthony become the new Colorado Senior Champion over Sean Scott and Gary Bagstad. All three scored 3.5 points from four games. Ryan Swerdlin won the Scholastics Closed. Robert Ramirez won the Challenger tournament on tie-break points, and Luke Stephens took the Scholastic Challenger. So these two players earned places in next year's Championship sections.

The tournaments were hard fought, with all sections producing some fine chess. Curiously, the two Challenger sections produced a great many drawn games. Suhaas Narayanan drew all five, and Andy Wu, Robert Ramirez, and Kevin Seidler split the point four times. But this does not mean the games lacked excitement. Look at Jex-Ramirez, Martinez-Stephens, Wu-Narayanan, and Narayanan-Lannici to see hard fought battles well played by both sides.

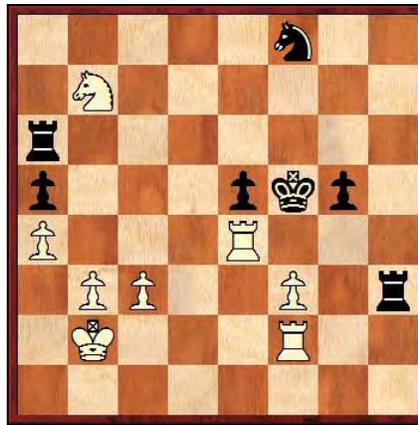

I would like to thank Randy Reynolds and Tim Brennan for their help in directing the tournaments on days when I had theatre commitments. They both did a fine job. My thanks also to all the players, and let's look forward to next year.

3 M's of Chess: Mobility

by Paul Anderson

(Editor's Note: The first two parts of this treatise can be read in the April 2013 issue of the Colorado Chess Informant.)

When I started playing tournament chess, I read a pamphlet from GM Arthur Bisguier about how to improve at chess. Since I had been crushed by him in a simul, I was more than willing to take his advice, even though I knew little about what a GM was. He had a list of 10 principles to keep in mind when playing. I thought that was a little too complicated for me to remember.

So, I condensed those ideas into what I considered the 3 strategies of chess. I also wanted something easy to remember so I decided to use the trick of alliteration to make them even more unforgettable. I called them the 3 M's of chess:

- ◆ Mate
- ◆ Material
- ◆ Mobility

The idea was that every chess move was an attempt to accomplish one of these three strategies and provided an ordered thought process in choosing a move.

The 1st priority chess strategy (Mate) was to protect your king from checkmate. Once you decide your king is not in harm, you can strategize about getting your opponent's king. However, in most chess positions checkmate is a long way off. So, now what do you do?

The 2nd priority chess strategy (Material) was to gain a more powerful army than your opponent. This idea involved not only a simple piece count, but also the understanding that each piece has a different value. Learning tactics was the key tool to implementing this strategy. However, in most chess positions you cannot capture a more valuable piece. So, now what do you do?

The 3rd priority chess strategy (Mobility) was to gain more territory for your army and make it faster than your opponent. This strategy was far harder to understand than the others as it involved both the ideas of space and time. Understanding how to maximize the movement of different pieces was not easy, but it was all there was left. If I wasn't moving a piece to Mate my opponent's king or capture Material, then the move should have been improving its Mobility.

I soon began to notice that the different Material value of the pieces was directly related to their level of Mobility. The fastest piece, the queen, was worth far more than the slowest, the pawn. However, there was no Mobility Value Chart that told me how to maximize each piece.

Of course, many games and the lessons from losses gave me the feeling that the different pieces liked different things in regards to Mobility. So, I created my own chart:

Mobility Preferences of the Pieces:

- ◇ King likes Endgames
- ◇ Pawns like being Passed
- ◇ Rooks like Open Files
- ◇ Bishops like Open Diagonals
- ◇ Knights like Outposts
- ◇ Queens dislike Openings

As I began to understand these preferences, I realized that a lot of creating Mobility is related to the pawn structure. A pawn is passed when it has no opposing pawns in its path and the adjacent files. Similarly, a knight has an outpost when it is supported by a pawn and has no opposing pawns in the adjacent files which can attack it. Open Files and Open Diagonals are a line of squares that contain no pawns.

The king and queen were a little different, as their very high Material values discouraged their Mobility in the Opening. However, the queen becomes useful in the Middle Game as it can activate like a rook or bishop. The king almost always waits until the Endgame.

I also noticed that the different phases of the game favor different pieces. The Middle Game is the time to activate the more mobile pieces (rooks & bishops). While the Endgame is the time to activate the less mobile pieces (king & pawns).

Of course, I realized that I could also move a piece to reduce my opponent's Mobility too.

"Though most people love to look at the games of the great attacking masters, some of the most successful players in history have been the quiet positional players. They slowly grind you down by taking away your space, tying up your pieces, and leaving you with virtually nothing to do!" - Yasser Seirawan

From LM Brian Wall -

"Paul shackled all of David's pieces to the back rank - they looked like seated prisoners in a police transport van."

"I noticed a long time ago that Josh Bloomer has an uncanny knack for keeping his opponent's pieces restricted. Magnus Carlsen described that as his style on Charlie Rose. There are many terms for keeping your opponent's pieces on the back rank."

*"The Sheep Pen" - LM Brian Wall
"The Couch" - NM Josh Bloomer
"The Police Lineup" - Paul Anderson*

Paul asked me for advice for the 2013 Colorado Adult Challenger tournament.

"Look at all their games and try not to be terrified when you play them."

"I didn't know if my advice would help, maybe Paul would get slaughtered tactically every game like his game against Chris Peterson. Paul ended up surprising everyone by tying for first."

Tim Brennan also gave me hundreds of database games to look at.

Forcing a Draw – On the Comeback Trail

by NM Todd Bardwick

(Reprinted with permission of the Author, the United States Chess Federation & Chess Life magazine.)

There will be times in your chess career when your position is worse and you are hoping to get a draw. Of course, these aren't happy times!

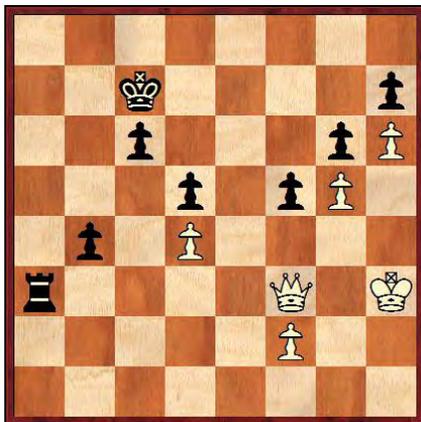

It is important to be mentally tough when you play chess and dig in when presented with adversity.

When you are losing, any type of draw works. Look to see if you can force a stalemate or find a perpetual check? Perhaps you can steer your opponent into a position he can't win?

As long as you are still playing, there is a chance for your opponent to make a mistake. If you hang in tough and try to complicate the position, sometimes the tide will turn.

Here is an interesting endgame position from the 1951 U.S. Championships between Israel Horowitz and Max Pavey.

Max Pavey

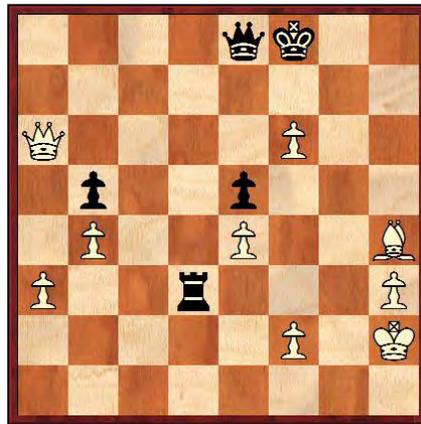

Israel Horowitz
Position after 77...Ra3

Black has had control of this game and just sacrificed his queen to line up White's king and queen and played 77...Ra3, pinning the queen. Black figures he is simplifying the position and is on his way to victory with his passed queenside pawn. But White shocks him with the surprising 78.Kh4! Rxf3 Stalemate. Any move other than 78...Rxf3 allows White's queen to live and Black would be in trouble. Never give up!

Here is another example of a surprise stalemate from a position that occurred in Gyor, Hungary in 1924 between Max Walter and Geza Nagy.

Geza Nagy

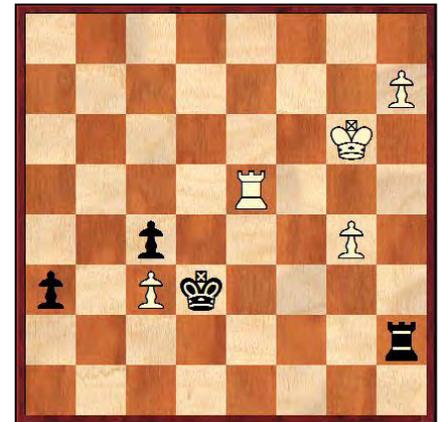

Max Walter
Position after 57.Qxa6 (pawn)?

White is busy adding to his material lead, unaware of the shot that is coming. Black sacrifices both pieces and draws by playing 57...Rxh3+! 58.Kxh3 Qe6+! 59.Qxe6 Stalemate.

Here is a complicated rook and pawn ending between Loek Van Wely and Peter Leko in 1996 played in Fontys (near Tillburg, The Netherlands).

Peter Leko

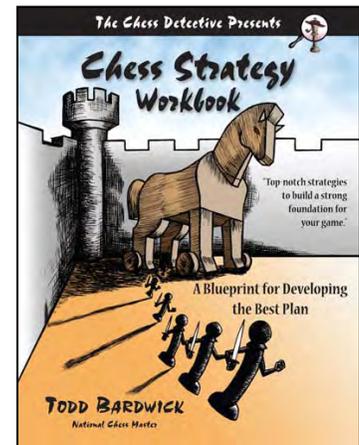

Loek Van Wely
Position after 53.Rxe5

Black figures that he is in danger of losing and counts out the pawn race to a drawn position after sacrificing his rook. He plays, 53...Rxh7! 54.Kxh7 Kxc3 55.Ra5 Kb2 56.g5 a2 57.g6 a1Q 58.Rxa1 Kxa1 59.g7 c3 60.g8Q 60.c2 Draw agreed. The bishop pawn on the 7th rank against a queen is a draw because the queen cannot force the Black king in front of the pawn to gain a tempo for his king to approach since the Black king can move to a1 and taking the pawn on c2 with the queen would result in a stalemate.

Colorado - New Mexico Team Match

by Brad Lundstrom

Seven Colorado players squared off in a team match against their counterparts in Santa Fe, New Mexico on June 8. Most of our state class champions were unavailable and runner up alternates stepped up grasp the opportunity of being part of the team. The team was extraordinarily young with every player being in their teens except myself. Every young player won or broke even in their two game matches leading the way to a devastating 9.5-4.5 match victory. Note: Perfect 2-0 scores for Isaac Martinez and Sara Herman! Needless to say again... but youth saved the day and did Colorado proud!

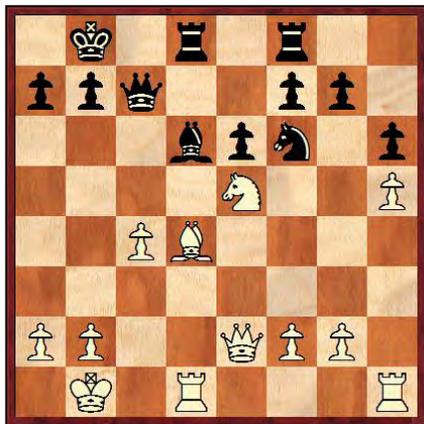

Thanks to the players, parents and chess coaches as well!

The team winning traveling plaque has been recaptured by Colorado chess players in 2013!

Fort Collins Country Club Invitational Tournament

by Brad Lundstrom

April 6-7, 2013. An over 1800 invitational chess tournament was organized and directed by Zach Bekkedahl at the beautiful Fort Collins Country Club. The four round event featured a G/90 +30 second increment time control that is a FIDE favorite becoming increasingly popular with many chess players. The advantages of this time control include no sudden death time forfeit with 30 seconds added every move and require a scoresheet to be completed with every move despite any time pressure. Life Master Brian Wall scored a perfect 4-0 winning the event. The critical game was Brian versus talented expert Zach Bekkedahl. In this game Brian used his vast experience to create a position to limit his opponent's counter play and gave a nice demonstration of accurate endgame play. Zach finished 3-1 for clear second place with myself and Ted Doykos finishing tied for third place.

Player	Rating	R1	R2	R3	R4	Score
